

Update on CCANZ Staff Activities, September to November 2014

To: Creative Commons Aotearoa New Zealand Advisory Panel

From: Matt McGregor, Public Lead

Date: 11 November September 2014

Organisation

Office Space

Our office at Enspiral has moved to Level 2 in the CMC building, 89 Courtenay Place.

Hosting

I have provided Susy Frankel with an introductory document on potential co-hosting opportunities for CCANZ, for the purposes of advancing discussions on the involvement of CCANZ with VUW's Centre for International and Economic Law.

Staff

We have hired seven casual workshop facilitators, four based in Auckland, two in Christchurch and one in Dunedin.

Volunteers

We are increasing our work with CC volunteers. We have a new volunteer form on our website, and have received three expressions of interest. We are primarily interested in volunteers providing events and writing resources. Volunteers have provided three workshops to date.

Interns

Law student Victoria Rea has completed her internship. Rachel Mataira is still completing her 100 hours of design work, to support the toolkits project. Projected outputs are a new CCANZ brochure, a policy paper template, a web home for the toolkits, and several other minor design tasks.

Funding and Partnerships

We are meeting the reporting requirements of both InternetNZ and LINZ. Please see the funding update for more details.

Community Calls.

We have not had another community call since the last meeting.

NZCommons

We have established an editorial board and email list for NZCommons, to help manage the site.

Affiliate Community

Matt has published a blog with CCHQ, and has another one forthcoming, as part of the Asia-Pacific affiliate community.

Workplan

A general workplan for 2015 has been developed, which expands on the general goals of our roadmap.

Loomio

We remain inactive on Loomio.

Projects

General: NZCommons

NZCommons continues to publish two pieces per week. We have also started to reuse pieces from NZCommons for other CC resources.

General: Creative Commons Book

Elizabeth is working with Whitireia Polytechnic's publishing course to publish a book of case studies.

Workshops 2015

We are developing a database of organisations to approach for workshops during 2015.

Schools: March Events

We will hold five main events in Auckland, Hamilton, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin, and look to hold as many satellite events as possible during this month.

Schools: Mix & Mash 2015

Mix & Mash 2015 has been delayed, though we will remain in contact with DigitalNZ and N4L on their future plans.

Schools: Toolkit

We continue to work on the CC in Schools toolkit. A generic policy has been developed, and will be released with other resources this year. We will promote the toolkit with the March events.

Research: Open Access Discussion Half Day

An Open Access discussion has been organised for 24 November, with participants from every university, several polytechnics, LINZ, NLNZ, MBIE, TEC, the Office of the Prime Minister's Chief Science Advisor, among others.

Research: Open Access Week

We encouraged and helped to coordinate and promote activities across all eight universities. We did not receive any media attention, though we did produce useful resources that can be reused in the future. The University of Canterbury also launched their OA mandatory deposit policy during the week.

Research: Marsden Fund

Matt did not present to the Marsden Fund, though submitted a second paper with clear OA recommendations.

Heritage: National Digital Forum.

We are providing a 101 workshop, and Matt will chair an open content panel with Mark Crookston, Victoria Leachman and Ainslie Dewe.

Heritage: March Events

We will hold five main events in Auckland, Hamilton, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin, and look to hold as many satellite events as possible during this month.

Indigenous Knowledge: Notice

Susy Frankel has started to draft the notice, and will consult with Aroha Mead and Karaitiana Taiuru during the process, before the draft is released for broader consultation.

Indigenous Knowledge: Translation

The translation of the 4.0 licences into te reo Māori is complete, though HQ have not yet approved the translations to be disseminated for wider consultation.
