

Update on CCANZ Public Lead Activities, December to February 2014

To: Creative Commons Aotearoa New Zealand Advisory Panel
CC: Richard Meylan, Manager, Public Engagement, RSNZ
From: Matt McGregor, Public Lead
Date: 19 February 2014

Funding

CCANZ continues to work with a range of organisations to secure sustainable funding post June 2014.

Interns

CCANZ hosted three interns over January and February, who have completed a variety of tasks in research, writing and design.

Resources

Creative Commons for Donors and Depositors

A draft guidance brochure has been produced to advise donors and depositors to heritage institutions.

Banner

We have completed a design for a CCANZ banner, for use at conferences and events.

Website redesign

Our intern, Sun Jeong, has developed some icons for the homepage.

Creative Commons Book

With the help of our intern Hannah Mettner, the portfolio of CCANZ case studies has been edited.

Discussion Papers

I have started the process of developing discussion papers on issues in Open Access and Open GLAM, in order to clarify CCANZ's position in the areas. I will circulate these drafts for comment before the next panel meeting.

Media

Press Releases

CCANZ published a media release of the 'Media Text Hack' project.

Projects and Partners

Open Textbook Project

The Open Media Studies Textbook was released in mid February, and has received some international attention.

Website Redesign

An initial redesign of the website is complete. I will work with CCANZ's summer interns to rewrite and redesign CCANZ's other web resources, as well as revisit current changes.

Creative Commons in Schools Events

Three large CC in schools events have been organised for Wellington, Auckland and Christchurch. More information is available at creativecommons.org.nz/schools.

NZ On Air

On Feb 4, I attended the NZ On Air Online Rights meeting in Auckland.

Mailing list

The discussion list has been migrated to Online Groups. I will be more active in inviting new members to the list in 2014.
